KATHY CALLAHAN NAMED NEW CLG PARTNER

PITTSBURGH, June 18, 2007 – CLG, the world’s largest behaviorally-based strategy execution and leadership development consultant, announced today that Kathy Callahan has been appointed partner with the company.

During her eight-year tenure at CLG, Callahan has worked with clients in a wide range of industries, including consumer packaged goods, oil and gas, insurance, engineering and construction, manufacturing, pharmaceuticals and financial services.

Callahan has worked on every level of clients’ organizations to successfully implement change. One area of specialty includes designing and developing High-Impact Meetings™ that are engaging, valuable and have lasting impact. Her understanding of and close involvement with leaders’ needs model the strong relationships and communication traits needed for corporate transformation, strategy execution and process design.

“Kathy embodies the core values which are the foundation for CLG,” said Ned Morse, CEO of CLG. “During her tenure she has always demonstrated a unique combination of business leadership and consulting experience with every client engagement. Her enthusiasm, knowledge and drive are the traits needed to continue to take CLG to the next level of growth.”
