LEADERSHIP CHANGES POSITION CLG FOR FURTHER GROWTH

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 16, 2008 – Leslie Braksick, Ph.D., Co-Founder and Chairman of CLG, a behaviorally-based strategy execution and leadership development consultant, announced today that Steve Jacobs has been named the company’s Chief Executive Officer, succeeding Ned Morse who has been at the helm of the company for the past three years. In addition, Hilary Potts has been named CLG President, a newly created position within the company. The changes support strategic initiatives for continued growth throughout the organization. Dr. Leslie Braksick, CLG’s Co-founder, will remain as CLG’s Chairman.

Ned Morse, who is also a senior partner within the firm, will transition back to a client-focused role where he will work more closely with CLG’s clients and help to expand CLG’s footprint with new and existing clients. CLG has consistently maintained a strong client-centric culture. The leadership changes reflect CLG’s overall mission to stay focused on the evolving needs of its clients while it scales to achieve future growth objectives. As a result, Ned Morse will be able to focus a greater portion of his time and proven expertise, in direct support of these objectives.

Steve Jacobs, a senior partner at CLG and a member of the company's Board of Directors, has been with the firm since 1996. During his 12-year tenure, he has worked tirelessly alongside clients who rely on him for providing practical support in large scale change leadership, scalable approaches to accelerating performance across the enterprise, executive coaching, and building sustainable execution capability. In his new role as CEO, Steve will be charged with pursuing new growth opportunities and will have a direct impact in charting CLG's strategic vision.

"CLG is where I've chosen to spend more than a decade of my career, largely because of our clients, our colleagues, and our distinct services. I am genuinely excited for the opportunity to accelerate the momentum that we have built over our fifteen year history," said Steve Jacobs.

As part of the leadership changes, Hilary Potts has been appointed to the newly-created position of President. Hilary is a partner in the firm and also a member of its Board of Directors. For over eight years she has worked closely with CLG clients – among them top leaders in some of the world's most prominent companies – to execute business strategies that achieve dramatic business improvements. She is a trusted advisor and executive coach with more than 20 years of business leadership experience. She brings a distinctly high-energy, no-nonsense approach as she works with executives around the globe to realize sustainable results.

Her prior business leadership experience will serve her well in her new role as president of CLG. Hilary will have all functions reporting directly to her, including Marketing and Business Development, Consultant Readiness/Delivery and People Systems, the office of the Chief Financial Officer, Offer Management, and Information Technology.

“It is an honor to serve in this position at such an exciting time for our clients and the company. Recently, CLG has experienced significant growth and I believe Steve and I are well-prepared to take the company to its next level of development to meet our client needs,” said Hilary Potts.

CLG’s unique approach to implementing strategy through behavior is the key differentiating factor that enables it to stand apart from its competition. The rapid growth CLG has recently experienced has turned it into a company to watch in 2008. In the last two years, CLG has garnered accolades by being named among the country’s fastest growing companies by Inc. magazine and the Pittsburgh Business Times. In addition, the company was named one of Southwestern Pennsylvania’s best places to work in two independent awards processes, has established partnerships with world-class business schools domestically and abroad, and has recently expanded its European business through multi-year contracts in the face of world wide competition.

“Ned, Steve, and Hilary have each played integral roles in CLG becoming the company it is today, and each of them will fill increasingly key roles in this next season of CLG’s corporate life. We are so fortunate to have the talent of these three individuals and their teams, to lead CLG into the future,” said Dr. Leslie Braksick.
